Volume 6, Issue 6

October 3, 2011

We prepare our students for college through a rigorous arts-infused program.

Correction- Last week's progress reports go home today.

Due to a printing issue, last week's progress report will be going home today. Normally, reports go home every Friday and are to return back signed by the following Monday. This is a way for you and your child to know where they stand academically on a weekly basis.

Reminder- End of First Quarter, October 14th

The end of the first quarter is fast approaching. It is imperative that you and your child understand that the first quarter sets the stage Semester 1 credits. If your child starts off on a good note, and maintain that momentum, they should be on track to receive all credits in Semester One in January. However, if they struggled this marking period, it is imperative for you and your child to develop a plan to make sure second quarter pulls up their GPA. I know it's a little complicated, so if you are looking for clarity or have questions please contact Ms. McDade.

Sex, Drugs, and Education- not a great mix

As our students get older, it is so important that parents, teachers, and administrators band together to address the growing issues of teens. The biggest thing that we all have to realize is that this a K-10 community.

Regarding Relationship Appropriateness

Talk to your child about the correct way to act while in a relationship. Showing someone you care at school does not have to involve inappropriate touch in the hallways or anywhere near school premises.

Regarding Drugs and Alcohol

This has always been a growing issue when students enter into high school. As a school we can only do so much. Please make sure you have serious conversations with your children regarding drugs and alcohol. Not only do these things alter learning, it also alters behavior.

It's time for all of us to realize that our children are growing up and that we need to band together to ensure their safety in our learning environment.
